Code of Conduct

As the organizers of the Asia Clean Energy Forum (ACEF), we have prepared this Code of Conduct to provide guidance for all participants about the values we want to promote during the forum, and the type of respectful and collaborative behavior we wish to encourage.

ACEF Values. At ACEF, we wish to foster an environment characterized by the following values: respect for all forum participants, including the staff and workers supporting the event; professionalism and integrity in all interactions and communications; respect for diversity of race, gender, sexual orientation, culture, and opinions; and a commitment to cooperation and collaboration during the forum.

Standard of Conduct. ACEF participants are expected to conform to a high standard of mutual respect, integrity and conduct at all times. Participants must behave in a manner that creates an environment free of harassment and bullying. In their dealings with others during the forum, participants must not discriminate; are expected to act inclusively and respectfully; and to show consideration for others, as well as respect and tolerance for diverse cultures and beliefs.

Intolerance of Misconduct. At ACEF, we wish to promote and encourage a positive conference environment of dignity and mutual respect toward all colleagues (regardless of hierarchical role or rank), in which inappropriate behavior and misconduct, including harassment, bullying and retaliation, are not tolerated.

Reporting. We want all ACEF participants to be happy at our event and to enjoy the experience. Harassment and other code of conduct violations reduce the value of our event for everyone, and we would like to be informed of any such incidents. If, during ACEF, you observe troubling behavior or behavior that makes you or any of your colleagues feel unsafe or unwelcome you are requested to report your concerns to David Morgado (dmorgado@adb.org) of ADB, or to acef@adb.org. You may also approach the ACEF Secretariat Desk outside the main auditoriums. You may make a report either personally or anonymously. All reports will be handled discreetly and professionally.
